

WEDDING AISLES

RAISED AISLE VS. TRADITIONAL

Consider a Raised Aisle:

...to allow for a clear line of sight when you make your entrance (because let's face it, it's the part of the ceremony that guests are most eagerly waiting for!)

...to deter guests from walking on or over the aisle.

...if your wedding style and vision has a soft, romantic feel; the abundance of candlelight from the river of candles will enhance the mood of the room.

...for a beautiful photo backdrop to your first look.

...because incorporating a river of candles down the aisle offers multiple options for repurposing at pre or post-wedding events.

Consider a Traditional Aisle:

...to highlight the larger floral pieces down the aisle.

...for a unique entrance; for example, a bride's grand entrance on a Doli.

...to give importance to all your closest family members if you're having trouble limiting those who accompany the groom's procession or bride's walk down the aisle.

...because being at ground level is a safe option when elderly friends and family are walking you down the aisle.

...to create an intimate atmosphere, as you'll be on the same level as your guests.
